

eInfochips among top developers

eInfochips, a chip and product design services company, was recognised as one of the top five Texas Instruments (TI) developer at Texas Instruments Developers Conference (TIDC) 2008 in Dallas, USA for their support of TI's DaVinci technology customers. eInfochips has been selected to an exclusive list of companies for its long standing strategic collaboration with TI and has enabled Texas Instruments' customers with applications involving video communications, consumer electronics, communications and networking, storage, medical imaging, industrial automation.